Lax Martinez Gema (gema.laxmartinez)

From: Le Moglie Marco (marco.lemoglie)
Sent: Thursday, September 11, 2025 2:47 PM
To: Sandi Matteo Carlo Maria (matteo.sandi)
Cc: Lax Martinez Gema (gema.laxmartinez)
Subject: I: Paper indoctrination under Franco

FYI

Marco Le Moglie
Associate Professor of Economics
Catholic University of the Sacred Heart
https://sites.google.com/site/marcolemoglie/

Da: Mounu Prem <fmmunoz.ma@gmail.com>
Inviato: giovedì 11 settembre 2025 13:54
A: Le Moglie Marco (marco.lemoglie) <marco.lemoglie@unicatt.it>
Oggetto: Re: Paper indoctrination under Franco

Non ricevi spesso messaggi di posta elettronica da fmmunoz.ma@gmail.com. Scopri perché è importante

Hi Marco,

Great job with the paper it's super interesting! I manage to take some time to take a look at the introduction. Here are some thoughts:
- I like the motivation part 1-2, but I think is a bit: i) long and ii) even though it makes the point that the topic is super important, then we you jump to indoctrination, the reader could feel that there is a bit of disconnection. Should we think that the patterns that we observe today are coming from policies implemented under the autocracies, or the autocracy is just an opportunity to link social norms, policies, and fertility, but then the backlash may be something only particular to autocracies. In general, in the motivation, I would mention autocracies and their policies and how they can have unintended consequences in the long run. In this way, the jump to your questions seems smoother.
- I think the part where you explain the empirical strategy on page 2 of the introduction could be improved. I am a bit confused as to call this a DiD, in a sense the year of birth determines the share of primary schools affected by the reform, so there is at the end only one diff, no?
- Did this have an effect on the marriage market? In a sense, now girls interact less with boys (because of the gender segregation) so maybe this is another margin that was affected that could potentially affect fertility.
- For the actual DiD analysis, I wasn't sure how to interpret the results; in part, they could resemble the same effects that you already showed or more interestingly an spillover effect to unaffected cohorts. This second effect I find it more interesting, perhaps you could exclude the affected cohorts and then see if you find a reduction in these areas, this could speak to a transmission of these preferences across the population.
- Maybe I missed it, but as you said in your email, our paper seems connected to the literature review on indoctrination by autocracies. Just in case here is the latest version of the paper.

All the best of luck with the submission!
Mounu

On Thu, Sep 11, 2025 at 9:45 AM Mounu Prem <fmmunoz.ma@gmail.com> wrote:

Hi Marco,

I hope you are doing great! Happy to take a look at the paper, give me until the end of next week to send you feedback, I hope this doesn't delay too much your submission.

All the best!
Mounu

On Thu, Sep 4, 2025 at 11:31 AM Le Moglie Marco (marco.lemoglie) <marco.lemoglie@unicatt.it> wrote:

Hi Mounu, how are you? I hope this message finds you well.

I'm Marco Le Moglie — we met when you came to present at Cattolica in May, and if you recall, I mentioned to you the paper we were working on about the demographic impact of Franco's primary school reform. I'm writing now because my co-authors and I have finalized the draft, and we would like to share it with you to get your opinion before submitting it. As I mentioned during our conversation, the topic is in part related to your work "Empowerment or Indoctrination? Female Training Programs under Dictatorship."

Of course, if you don't have time, no problem at all. Otherwise, I would be very grateful for any feedback you might have.

Best,

Marco

Marco Le Moglie
Associate Professor of Economics
Catholic University of the Sacred Heart
https://sites.google.com/site/marcolemoglie/

UNIVERSITÀ CATTOLICA del Sacro Cuore

CON IL TUO 5X1000 ALL'UNIVERSITÀ CATTOLICA SOSTIENI
LA FORMAZIONE, LA RICERCA, LO SVILUPPO C.F. 02133120150

UNIVERSITÀ CATTOLICA del Sacro Cuore

CON IL TUO 5X1000 ALL'UNIVERSITÀ CATTOLICA SOSTIENI
LA FORMAZIONE, LA RICERCA, LO SVILUPPO C.F. 02133120150